Who we are

Lanna Softworks Company, Ltd. was established in Chiang Mai, Thailand in September 2005, with a mission to improve the outsourced software development experience.

In all of our current engagements, we are an embedded part of our client's organization, either by establishing their development team, or by supplementing their existing creative staff. We have found that the key to a successful outsourced solution is for a long-term commitment from both the client and the provider, with the two merging to form one creative entity.

“Lanna Softworks is a key part of our technical organization. Their skill, dedication and ability to “get the job done” has been instrumental in our ability to execute on a number of fronts.

I recommend Lanna Softworks to any company seeking a development partner.”

Tracy Terrill
CIO, LegalZoom.com

“Being a smaller company means that every client is our most important client.”

Why choose LannaSoftWorks

From the beginning the core goal in the philosophy of the Lanna Softworks operation has been to effectively bridge the gap between two very different cultures, thereby providing U.S. companies the same level of service they expect from their onshore teams. Lanna Softworks has instilled in its offshore team a deep understanding of how U.S. development teams operate while allowing its team to work in the way to which it is accustomed. The result translates into Lanna Softworks teams leveraging their existing skills and motivations in servicing its clientele.

Team Oriented

Many organizations talk about being team-oriented, but spend just a small amount of time here in our offices and you will see that we really mean it. One of the advantages of the Thai culture is the strong preference for working with others. This team spirit is embodied both within the project team they are working as well as across the company as a whole.

Low Turnover

Recent studies show the average turnover rate in I.T. in the U.S. is approximately 16%. In India the rate of turnover is in the 24% - 30% range. At Lanna Softworks this is simply not a problem. In the five years that Lanna Softworks has been in operation only one member of the technical team has ever resigned. In the past two years that number is zero.

Long-term Relationship

In all of our engagements we have a long-term relationship with our clients as an embedded part of their organization. This allows us to build a team whose value increases concurrently with your needs as your organization continues to grow.

Size Matters

Sometimes bigger is better, but not when one desires an organization to be focused on one's needs. Being a smaller company means that every client is our most important client.
